God's Promise.

The Rainbow, Gen. 9-23.

June is the beginning of the rainbow. With its buds and blossoms fair.

Even the violet feels God's tender care. July, August and September.

Add many a wonderful vision. Bring good times for our storehouse.

To keep us the winter through. But brilliant October gives us.

Our eyes behold beautiful visions. How sweet the promise of God.

Our hearts turn back to the giver. As we see the trees in glory arrayed.

And think for all our worry and fretting. How clearly God's love is portrayed.

Sometimes when the earth is dry and hot. We farmers, forgetting the promise true.

With our work become discouraged. And often grumble and feel blue.

But now the harvest time is near. Our hearts are filled with joy.

Abundant potatoes, corn and grain. Our hard labor will repay.

And our thoughts wander back to the biosomes. As on the trees the red apples nod.

We should be proud to express it. That each wonderful gift is from God.

For the kind Father, who promised Noah. That time and harvest should always endure.

Still gives us the rainbow. His covenant. If we do our part, His promise is sure.

Oh, praise Him for His blessings. Trust Him, and good seeds sow.

For He will give us the rainbow. As we often think of the bright rainbow.

That there is an All Powerful God. As He sends us His promise of loving care.

When the sun shines through the rain. Mrs. ABEL ANDREWS.

The Tumble on the Hay.

Sweet memories of my childhood days. Come over me.

I see again the dear old farm. The meadow, hill, and stream.

But naught's to me now so dear. As the old barn, worn and gray.

Where I saw a boy and his dog. West tumbling over the hay.

The summers I used to turn. This old grey head, now bald on top.

Has got full many a bump. And father's old horse and Dick.

And mother's pet mare May. Were glad to see us happy boys.

Go tumbling over the hay. Dear father sleeps beside the hill.

And mother by his side. Within my heart still, I hear Nell.

Have long ago since died. And none remain but Sam and me.

Our father's old horse and Dick. For sixty years have passed since we.

West tumbling over the hay. Oh, days of childhood years.

No more will ye return. But memories sweet forever dear.

Within my heart still, I hear Nell. What would I give? My brown stone front.

My steeds and auto gay. To be once more a happy boy.

And tumble on the hay. LOVELL.

Joseph Andrew's Letters.

On Saturday night April 19th I bade my Burley friends goodbye and went to the Oakland Pier where I boarded a S. P. train on what is called the Shasta. Route and at 10.20 p. m. started for Hornbrook. The journey was to be my next stopping place and by daylight the next morning had passed Red Bluffs, 220 miles distant.

To here and hundred miles beyond the railroad follows the Sacramento river, and after leaving Keswick, which has an elevation of 567 feet the grade trends steadily upward until at Sisseton the altitude reached is 3554 feet. The upper Sacramento valley and lower foot hills is the great agricultural section of California. It is the great wheat and barley section of the state, and millions of bushels of wheat and barley are raised; and vast herds of cattle, sheep and horses graze upon its rich natural pastures.

As our train slowly climbs the grade through the Sacramento Canon we pass through scenes of great beauty and grandeur but what impressed me most of all was the great towering peak of Mt. Shasta, its white summit gleaming in the bright sunshine and towering to a height of 14,420 feet impressed me as one of the grandest sights that I had ever seen. In this connection I wish to quote from a book I have the following description of Shasta. "Mt. Shasta is the most beautiful of the Sierras, it is obtained brief glances through the pines, bursts into full view in all its sublime magnificence. This noted snow-capped peak towers to the height of 14,420 feet. It is an extinct volcano, and its snow and glaciers feed hundreds of streams which thread the wild region in every direction. At Sisseton is obtained the finest view of Shasta, and it is the only convenient place from which the ascent can be made. But few parties succeed in reaching the summit, and the attempt is only made in mid-summer and then with trusty guides. The feat is exciting but the view is grand beyond description. It is a paradise for the sportsman and the lover of nature. Grizzly, black and cinnamon bears abound, elk, deer and mountain sheep are plenty, as well as a great variety of smaller game. The mountain streams teem with trout and often the sport looses zest through the very abundance of beaver. The McCloud and Pit rivers are the most noted streams though others are equally attractive. The McCloud runs through the most uninhabited and unexplored region of the coast. No region in the state is so delightful for camping and hundreds of parties go there every year. At Sisseton, camping with complete outfits at moderate cost. From Redding northward the Southern Pacific road is the scenic route of California and at the base of Mount Shasta, eighty miles north of Redding, the scene of interest is reached. While there are many places in California replete with beauty and grandeur there are none which for infinite variety of scenery, wilderness and abundance of everything to delight the sportsman, artist and tourist, can compare with the region about Shasta."

At Sisseton we pass close to Shasta and as we half circle its base and pass beyond we get many fine views of the grand old mountain. About three o'clock Sunday afternoon my train arrived at Hornbrook close to the northern line of California, where I left the train and spent the night so as to take the stage the next morning for Happy Camp, 73 miles distant where I was bound to visit my childhood playmate who I had not met for fifty years.

At Hornbrook stage leaves Hornbrook each day except Sunday and runs to Hamburg forty three miles distant, where there is a stage station and night accommodations. The next morning another stage leaves Hamburg for Happy Camp, 28 miles distant. Hornbrook is on the Klamath river and is the center of what was once a great placer mining country. The main business of the town is lumbering and hauling freight to and from the interior mining towns.

The town contains a bank, a large two story brick hotel, three churches, several stores, a barber shop (at which I paid 25 cents for a shave) and quite a number of substantial dwellings. I noticed that the hotel had a bar and there was one or more saloons in town. There was also a state fish hatchery in town. There was quite a large number of miners, cowboys and half breed Indians in the country, but all seemed quiet and orderly and the afternoon and evening passed away in a very pleasant and quiet way.

Monday morning I climbed aboard the two-horse open stage and started out on tour of inspection and discovery. The road follows the Klamath river all the way and has been built at great expense by the county or state. The mountains on either side come down to the waters edge much of the way, and in many places the solid rock had to be blasted away and the roadway built up from the lower side with a stone wall five to fifteen feet high. I was told that there was five feet of snow on a level there last winter and the spring rains had kept the road supervisors from doing much work on the road.

There were many chuck holes in the road and in places I had to hold onto the seat with both hands to keep from being dumped over board or getting a back. The road was just wide enough for a single wagon and there were but few places for passing teams. In places the outside rut was not more than a foot from the edge of a fifty foot drop to the waters edge below and the wabbling team often carried the wheels dangerously near the jumping off place. The river is perhaps twenty rods wide and at that time was deep and rapid. Several boulders piled along the rivers edge some of them twenty to thirty feet high and on inquiry was told that the entire bed of the river had been worked over for gold dust. Great steam dredges had been used to clean out and pile up the rock so that in low water the miners could get to the bottom and wash out the golden grain thereon.

WORMS IN CHILDREN

Worms are a danger to the health of a child. Make sure that such is not the case with your child.

Signs of worms in children are: Deranged stomach, swollen upper lip, sour stomach, offensive breath, hard and full belly with occasional gripings and pains about the navel, pale face of leaden tint, itching of the nose, itching of the throat, short dry cough, grinding teeth, little red points sticking out on tongue, starting during sleep, slow fever.

If at all doubtful, make certain of health by using Dr. Trueman's Worm Expeller, the Family Laxative and Worm Expeller. It's the one best thing for regulating the stomach and bowels and expelling worms. At your druggist's, 35c, 50c, and $1.00. Advice free. Special treatment for tape-worms. Send for book.

Auburn, Me. Dr. Trueman

struck a "pocket" and in one day took out over sixty thousand dollars in gold dust.

About dark we arrived at Hamburg, a little hamlet with two stores, a stage station and perhaps a dozen dwellings, the day had been a pleasant one and the ride although tiresome had been intensely interesting to me. The stage horses had been changed three times, and were well fed and cared for. I found good quarters at the little stage station, and after a restful night's sleep arose and prepared for another strenuous day's travel.

SOUTH WATERFORD.

The Order of the Eastern Star.

This popular Order, identified with the Order of Free Masons, was organized in the latter part of the 18th century - the exact date is not known. Its founders sought to create a social tie between the families of Masons, but it earlier reached a higher standard of usefulness. Among its objects are caring for the widow and orphan and assist the Masonic brother in all deeds of mercy and love. It has founded Eastern Star Homes for widows and orphans of Masons and has become a mighty impetus in the building and support of Masonic Homes. Everywhere the members visit the sick, relieve the distressed and speak words of cheer to the despairing. It has been found helpful all over the land in carrying forward the underlying principles of Masonry.

It has taught woman to preside in public meetings and to make herself conversant in parliamentary law. Masonry unites the heads of families, whereas the Eastern Star unites the entire families. Its ritualistic teachings are designed to inculcate morals and to improve the social virtues. The Order is estimated to comprise about 3,500 chapters with a membership of 250,000.

HIRAM.

Dr. Chas. E. Wilson is very ill of heart disease.

Hon. Chas. Rankin is recovering from a severe illness.

Andrew Merrifield of South Hiram, our oldest inhabitant, will be 93 on November 5. We wish that he may keep the gold headed cane seven years longer.

The oldest house in Hiram now inhabited is probably the house occupied by John B. Pike, Esq. It was built in 1800 by Gen. Peleg Wadsworth. The centennial was celebrated in June, 1900, by the Wadsworth and Longfellow families and Maine Historical Society. The house owned by Eli C. Wadsworth was built in 1815 by Loammi Baston, his father, Daniel Baston, having settled on the farm in June, 1788, coming from Denmark, where he is said to have settled in 1775, and gave his name to Baston Mills, his house having been near there. In 1875 when Ephraim Sanborn or Sanborn & Emery had a mill on Hiram Falls they cut oak timber there and brought it down, eight miles to a time in an old iron canal boat propelled by steam, and then workmen discovered traces of Mr. Baston's old fields in the Denmark forests, some of the old furrows being then visible.

OXFORD COUNTY ADVERTISER, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1913

Joseph Andrew's Letters.

On Saturday night April 19th I bade my Burley friends goodbye and went to the Oakland Pier where I boarded a S. F. train on what is called the Shasta Route and at 10:20 p. m. started for Hornbrook which was to be my next stopping place and by daylight the next morning had passed Red Bluffs, 220 miles distant.

Here and hundred miles beyond the railroad follows the Sacramento river, and after leaving Keswick, which has an elevation of 567 feet the grade tends steadily upward until at Sisseton the altitude reached is 3554 feet. The upper Sacramento valley and lower foot hills is the great agricultural section of California. It is the great wheat and barley section of the state, and millions of bushels of wheat and barley are raised;
and vast herds of cattle, sheep and horses graze upon its rich pastures.

As our train slowly climbs the grade through the Sacramento Canon we pass through scenes of great beauty and grandeur but what impressed me most of all was the great towering peak of Mt. Shasta, its snow-capped summit distinct in the bright sunshine and towering to a height of 14,420 feet impressed me as one of the grandest sights that I had ever seen. In this connection I wish to quote from a book I have the following description of Shasta: "A mountain of great beauty, of which we have obtained brief glimpses through the pines, bursts into full view in all its sublime magnificence.

This noted snow-capped peak towers to the height of 14,420 feet. It is an extinct volcano, and its snow and glaciers feed hundreds of streams which thread the wild region in every direction. At Sisseton is obtained the finest view of Shasta and its base is the most convenient place from which the ascent can be made.
But few parties succeed in reaching the summit, and the attempt is only made in mid-summer and then with trusty guides. The feat is exciting but the view is grand beyond description.

The region about Shasta is a paradise for the sportsman and the lover of nature.
Grizzly, black and cinnamon bears abound, elk, deer and mountain sheep are plenty, as well as a great variety of small game. The mountain streams are teeming with trout and often the sport looses zest through the very abundance of beauties. The McCloud and Pit rivers are the most noted streams though others are equally attractive. The Mc-Cloud runs through the most unpopulated and unexplored region of the coast. No region in the state is so delightful for camping and hundreds of parties go there every year. At Sisseton, camping and hunting parties can be provided with comfortable accommodations at From Redding northward the Southern Pacific road is the scenic route of California and at the base of Mount Shasta, eighty miles north of Redding, the acme of interest is reached. While there are many places in California more beautiful and grander than there are none which offer infinite variety of scenery, wilderness and abundance of everything to delight the sportsman, artist and tourist, can compare with the region about Shasta."

At Sisseton we pass close to Shasta and as we half circle its base and pass beyond we get many fine views of the grand old mountain. About three o'clock Sunday afternoon my train arrived at Hornbrook close to the northern line of California, where I left the train and spent the night so as to take the stage the next morning for Happy Camp, 73 miles distant where I was bound to visit my childhood playmate who I had not met for fifty years.

A two horse stage leaves Hornbrook each day except Sunday and runs to Hamburg forty three miles distant, where there is a stage station and night accommodations. The next morning another stage leaves Hamburg for Happy Camp 28 miles distant. Hornbrook is on the Kalamath river and is the center of what was once a great placer mining country.
The main business of the town is in being and hauling freight to and from the interior mining towns.

The town contains a bank, a large two story brick hotel, three churches, several stores, a barber shop (at which I paid 25 cents for a shave) and quite a number of substantial dwellings. I noticed that the hotel had a bar and there was one or more saloons in town. There was also a state fish hatchery in town.
There was quite a large number of miners coming here half past five in the morning, but all seemed quiet and orderly and the afternoon and evening passed away in a very pleasant and quiet way.

Monday morning I climbed aboard the two horse open stage and started out on the road of inspection and discovery. The road follows the Kalamath river all the way and has been built at great expense by the county or state. The mountains on either side come down to the waters edge much of the way, and in many places the solid rock had to be blasted away and the roadway built up from the lower side with a stone wall five to fifteen feet high. I was told that there was five feet of snow on a level there last winter and the spring rates had kept the road supervisors from doing much work on the road.

There were many chuck holes in the road and in places I had to hold onto the seat with both hands to keep from being dumped overboard or getting a back. The road was just wide enough for a single wagon and there were but few places for crossing teams. In places the outside rut was not more than a foot from the edge of the water to the waters edge below and the wabbling team often carried the wheels dangerously near the jumping off place. The river is perhaps twenty rods wide and at that time was deep and rapid.

I noticed many great pillars or boulders piled along the rivers edge some of them twenty to thirty feet high and on inquiry was told that the entire bed of the river had been worked over for gold dust. Great steam dredges had been used to clean out and pile up the rock so that in low water the miners could get to the bottom and wash out the golden grain thereon.

From my observation I should judge that the entire northern part of California is covered with a heavy growth of timber. Here the principal growth seemed to be the Oregon Fir and Sugar Pine, some of the trees being at least seven or eight feet in diameter and very tall. A few miles above Hamburg we drove two miles out of our way up a small stream to a little village that had once been a thriving mining town. I counted over twenty fairly good frame dwellings houses, but only a few were occupied.
It was indeed a deserted village, and if they could speak to doubt some of those vacant houses could tell strange tales of love and hate, fond hopes and disappointed ambitions.

The way up the place was pointed out to me where a miner in the creek bottom

WORMS IN CHILDREN

Worms are dangerous to the health of a child. Make sure that such is not the case with your child.

Signs of worms in children
are: Deranged stomach,
swollen upper lip, sour stomach, offensive odor from the mouth, full belly with occasional gripings and pains about the navel, pale face of leaden tint, Trace Mark eyes heavy and dull, twich-ing eyelids, itching of the nose, itching of the rectum, short dry cough, grinding teeth, little red points sticking out on tongue, starting during sleep, slow fever.
If at all doubtful, make certain of health by using Dr. Tru's Elker, the Family Laxative and Worm Expeller.
It's the one best thing for regulating the stomach and bowels and expelling worms.

worms. Send for book.

Auburn, Me. Dr. Tru's

struck a "pocket" and in one day took out over sixty thousand dollars in gold dust.

About dark we arrived at Hamburg,
a little hamlet with two stores, a stage station and perhaps a dozen dwellings, and by day it was a pleasant one and the ride although tiresome had been intensely interesting to me. The stage horses had been changed three times, and were well fed and cared for. I found good quarters at the little stage station, and after a restful night's sleep packed and prepared for another strenuous day's travel.

At one of the stores a long heavy box was pointed out to me and I was told that it was directed to Mr. Swan at Happy Camp. I looked it over and concluded that it contained the old family clock that I had often seen when a boy at the old Swan family mansion at Swan's Falls, Fryeburg, Maine. It was a part of the personal property of the late Olio Swan (it was valuable, too, as a relic of the past, and had been appraised at fifty dollars, as I learned later) and her brother, Joe, had chosen it as a part of his share of the estate.

And here thousand miles from home on its way to greet with its tick, tick, the gray haired man, who as a bright eyed boy with golden curls, the pride and joy of his parents' and sister's home, listened to the same tick, tick, away back in Maine, fifty to sixty-five years ago.

SOUTH WATERFORD.

The Order of the Eastern Star.

This popular Order, identified with the Order of Free Masons, was organized in the latter part of the 18th century, the exact date is not known. Its founders sought to create a social tie between the families of Masons, but it earlier reached a higher standard of usefulness.
Among its objects are caring for the widow and orphan and assisting the Masonic brother in all needs of mercy and love.

It has founded Eastern Star Homes for widows and orphans of Masons and has become a mighty impetus in the building and support of Masonic Homes.
Everywhere its members visit the sick, relieve the distressed and speak words of cheer to the despairing. It has been found helpful all over the land in carrying forward the underlying principles of Masonry.

It has taught woman to preside in public meetings and to make herself convenient in parliamentary law. Masonry unites the heads of families, whereas the Eastern Star unites the entire families.
Its ritualistic teachings are designed to inculcate morals and to improve the social virtues. The Order is estimated to comprise about 3,500 chapters with a membership of 250,000.

Mr. Edwards has recently set the song to original music and has made of it an inspiring State song."

As Others See Us.

Enclosed is a clipping from a Washington weekly which may be of interest to our neighbors of Bridgton or others who care "to see ourselves as others see us." The writer is anonymous as "The Sailor Aunt," who has visited Norway in Europe among other resorts.

Although I'm glad to be back, I recall with keen pleasure many of my recent experiences. There was that ride to Bridgton, for instance, whether I was taken in August by your cousin hills we had to climb, the steepest hill has no terrors for an auto, fortunately, were almost equal to those I encountered during my driving trip in Norway. And such views as we got from the top of

Then our two days' stay in the pretty little village of Bridgton was a treat. Many people like ourselves were attracted there by the festival. The hostelry which harbored us also sheltered many of the soloists, who had come from several of the last offices to take part in the affair, and who were easily spotted in the dining room.

One of them—an uncommonly pretty, vivacious young girl—sat near us with an older woman, evidently her mother, drawing all eyes, feminine as well as masculine, to her as a magnet. We afterwards learned that she was from Augusta, and that while fitting herself to be an organist it was discovered that she could sing better than she could play so she dropped by instrument and took up vocal music. When we heard her sing we were perfectly charmed, with her beautiful bird-like voice, and unless I am very much mistaken, that young woman, (she looked about 18, and has only been studying a year) has a great future before her.

But it was the chorus of 300 voices, made up of men and women, girls and boys, from the farms in that part of the State, that interested us far more than the soloists. The leader had gone from village to village, the winter previous, starting old-fashioned singing societies, and all through the long, cold months he had visited the classes at regular intervals, training them for the festival and instilling into them a remarkable enthusiasm. Their faces, which were lined and seamed by the hard work of the farm, it is no joke trying to get a living from a Maine farm, were absolutely beaming with happiness. They were never had they sung together till they "go"—about that chorus I never met before, and I have heard some pretty fine choruses. They sang as if they would split their throats or burst a blood vessel, and not once did they let their eyes from the leader. You could not help smiling, they were in such dead earnest, and some of them opened their mouths so very widely, but tears rushed to the eyes with the smile to the lips as you watched and listened to them.

Daddy Longlegs.

Daddy Longlegs are the cause of many an ugly scar on a fine green lawn. The grub feeds on the roots of grass, and naturally, when these are destroyed, the grass withers away, leaving ugly brown patches, which ruin the appearance of many a fine lawn. When the grub has changed into a chrysalis and is about to emerge as its way to the surface.

Then, when about two-third of it protrudes from the ground, the case bursts and from it emerges "Daddy Longlegs," ready to commence his stupid but harmless career.

At the State House, at Augusta on Wednesday, the subject of wild land taxation was discussed among a group of Maine and Massachusetts men. It was argued that a low rate of taxation on these lands is better for the interests of the State inasmuch as a high rate would result in cutting the forests down, while a low rate would prefer in most cases to allow the trees to stand and increase in value under a low rate of taxation. It was also the majority opinion of the group that the wisest plan of taxation is to tax the land and only the lumber as it is cut. This plan is now in vogue in some States.

The prettiest rooms are those whose ornamentation is simple. A mantel filled with ornaments is not a thing of beauty. It is a great care and not restful to the eye. Weed it out down to a few really choice ornaments and it becomes an adornment and means easy dusting. Let the woman who is afraid to have too few things on her mantel, remind herself of the fact that the Japanese—masters in the art of making rooms beautiful—seldom have one vase the sole bit of bric-a-brac.

How to Refinish Old Surfaces.
The first thing to do in refinishing old wood surfaces is to remove all varnish and paint. This may be done easily by the use of a good varnish remover. The varnish remover may be bought at any paint store, says the Woman's World. It is applied with a brush and allowed to stand for a few minutes; then varnish and paint are easily removed. If there are any burnt or stained places it may be necessary to scrape the surface with a piece of smooth wood. The surface is thoroughly smoothed with sandpaper and is ready for a new paint or varnish. If it is desirable to keep the color and grain of the wood as they are a clear varnish may be used which contains the desired color.

SOUTH WATERFORD.

Gentlemen's Night. Last Saturday evening was gentlemen's night at the Grange hall. Sixty brothers and sisters were present. After a short opening session and brief recess the stage was occupied by quite a crowd of gentlemen, who behind the lowered curtain were engaged during a time of tedious waiting in mysterious preparation for what to the expectant audience was to materialize as the entertainment of the evening.

The rising curtain exhibited the furniture and paraphernalia of a court room, each station being occupied by its proper officer. The judicial bench was held down by our honorable citizen, William Haynes, esq.; Clerk of Court, Rev. G. W. Slat; Sheriff, C. S. Hamlin. In the prisoner's box appeared to the surprise of all present, our esteemed young fellow citizen, A. W. Hamlin, accompanied by an elderly looking person in female costume appearing as the supposed mother of the culprit.

A lengthy indictment was read by the clerk, charging that the prisoner had, on the night of Sept. 32nd, been guilty of larceny by stealing squashes from the garden of a neighbor. The plea in defense was "not guilty."

Here the foreman of the jury, Arthur Sanderson arose and started to leave the court room. He was halted by the court and asked where he was going. "I'm going home," said the foreman, "He says he isn't guilty." "Well, take your seat till this trial is finished," responded the court. Numerous witnesses were called by the attorney for state, A. J. Simpson, who testified rationally both in direct and cross examination.

The attorney for respondent, W. W. Abbott, exhibited the identical squashes alleged to have been stolen, which proved to be pumpkins. That defect in the indictment being shown, on motion of the counsel for the defendant, the learned court, after complimenting the gentleman of the jury for their good looks and general intelligence, ordered that the indictment be squashed.

Look for the TRIANGLE

LOOK for this triangle before you buy any heater.

It is the trademark of the latest model of the Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater.

It is the sign of the greatest improvements ever made in oil heating devices.

The Perfection Heater, as now made, gives more heat, holds more oil, is better made and works better than any other heater on the market.

It has a wide, shallow oil font, which allows the oil to pass readily up the wick and insures reliable, unchanging flame and heat, whether the font is full or nearly empty.

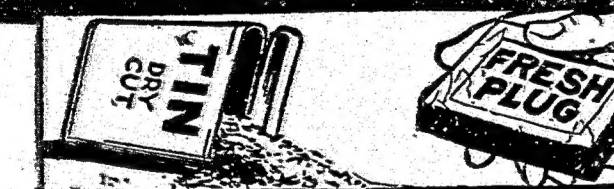

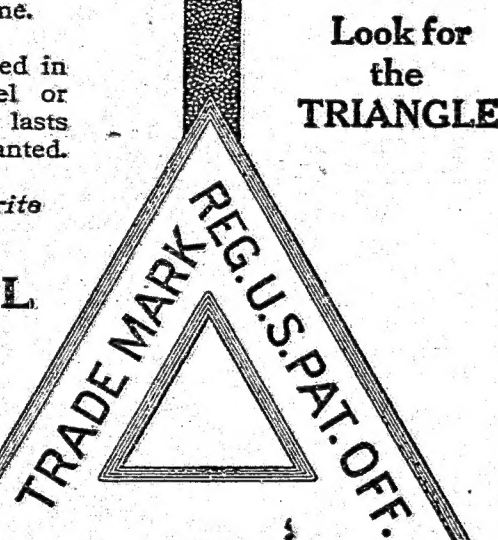

The Perfection is smokeless, because the patent locking flame-spreader prevents the wick being turned up high enough to smoke. It is easy to re-wick, because the carrier and wick are combined—just turn the oil and slip in the new.

Indicator tells how much oil is in the font. Filler plug is pushed in like a cork—no screw, no thread to wear. Attractive latticed window frame.

The Perfection Heater is finished in vitreous turquoise-blue enamel or plain steel drums; looks well, lasts well, easy to carry wherever wanted.

TO IMPROVE PRETTY HAIR AND BEAUTIFY UGLY HAIR

Harmony Hair Beautifier, a delightful liquid hair dressing, is just what it is named—a hair beautifier. No matter how pretty your hair now is, it can be made to look even better by using Harmony Hair Beautifier. To those who mourn because the hair is stringy, dull, lustreless and homely, Harmony Hair Beautifier will prove a real blessing and pleasure. It seems to polish and burnish the hair, making it glossy, silky-soft and more easy to put up in graceful, wavy folds that "stay put." It overcomes the oily smell of the hair with a dainty, true rose fragrance, very pleasing to the user and those around.

Very easy to apply—simply sprinkle a little on your hair each time before brushing it. It contains no oil, and will not change the color of the hair, nor darken gray hair.

To keep hair and scalp dandruff-free and clean, use Harmony Shampoo. This pure liquid shampoo gives an instantaneous rich lather that immediately penetrates to every part of the hair and scalp, insuring a quick, thorough cleansing. Washed off just as quickly, the entire operation takes only a few moments. Contains nothing that can harm the hair; leaves no harshness or stickiness—just a sweet cleanliness.

Both preparations come in odd-shaped, very ornamental bottles with spritzing tops. Harmony Hair Beautifier, $1.00. Harmony Shampoo, 50c. Both guaranteed to satisfy you in every way or your money back. Sold in this community only at our store—The Bazaar Store—one of the more than 7,000 leading drug stores of the United States, Canada and Great Britain, which own the big Harmony laboratories in Boston, where the many celebrated Harmony Perfumes and Toilet Preparations are made.—E. ### The Birch

This tree grows readily in this section and by cultivation and care might be profitably manufactured in many ways.

The range of uses to which birch wood is put is surprisingly large. According to the department, the articles in which it goes range from church pews to kitchen tables, and from organ pipes to newel posts.

We may have our first sleep in a birch crib and our last in a birch coffin. The spoons on which we get our cotton and silk thread are birch spoons, and the lasts on which our shoes are made are likely to be birch lasts.

The largest of the spoons hold 12,000 yards, the smallest 10 yards. The wood's beauty, strength and rigidity make it prominent as a material for musical instruments, and the same qualities bring it into extensive use for flooring.

Many people have an idea that shoe pegs have nearly passed out of use, but the amount of birch previously mentioned as made into pegs and shanks yearly in New England seems to disprove this notion. Birch, the department says, is often put on the market in imitation of other woods, and we may open many a door, sit on many a chair and write on many a desk which we imagine to be mahogany, but which is really birch stained to resemble the genuine article.

Nine species of birch grow in the United States, but sweet, yellow, paper and river birch are those most used. About 45,000,000 board feet of the wood finds its way to the market, yearly.

Paper birch is one of the few American species with a hold on the forest stronger than it had when America was discovered. Large tracts are now covered with this birch where there was little of it a century ago. It comes in after fire, and some tracts it has taken possession of cover hundreds of square miles.

Right Way to Clean Windows.

If windows are easily reached the glass in them keeps clean a great deal longer if it is kept regularly inside and out. A folded pad of newspaper is the best thing to use, and if this is sprinkled with a few drops of ammonia or paraffin it will serve for window cleaning also.

When windows are to be washed they should be dusted first with the newspaper pad if very dusty. In this way the cleaning and polishing will be more easily done. A teaspoonful of ammonia or paraffin to each half gallon of warm water makes a good solution, or cold water and washing blue may be tried. Chamois leather is excellent for the final polishing.

In frosty weather methylated spirit is useful, or the newspaper pad may be sprinkled with paraffin and no water at all used.

Windows must never be cleaned when the sun is shining on them, and all cloths used must be free from lint. Experience seems to prove that different kinds of glass respond to different methods of cleaning, but in every case newspaper or tissue paper pads are recommended for the final polish and a sprinkle of paraffin will make the effect more satisfactory.

A window brush is useful for cleaning the outside of downstairs windows. Its long broom handle should have a metal socket at the end, into which another handle fits, for cleaning the upper panes. With this and a pail of blued water the lower windows are readily cleaned, but they must be well rinsed. Splashes of paint which have hardened on the windows may be removed by means of hot vinegar or a strong solution of washing soda. A paste made with whitening and powdered ammonia mixed with a little water is effective. It must be put on thickly and left on the paint spots until quite dry, then washed off with soap and water.

As a last hint it may be well to say that lacquered curtain rods used for windows which are kept open are soon corroded if there is much dampness, but this can be prevented for a long time by rubbing the rods frequently with a soft dry cloth and with furniture cream each time the curtains are changed.

Sash cords also need attention. Their durability may be increased and the vibration of a broken cord postponed for a long time by rubbing them every now and then with a tallow (not wax) candle warmed slightly to soften it. If the old fashioned tallow "dip" is not within reach a very little lard or fat may be used, provided it is absolutely free from salt, which would rot the cord.

WEST PARIS.
The grade held an interesting program at their meeting last Saturday afternoon on Harvest. There were harvest quotations from all members present on Mrs. White's side of the contest. There were readings by Mrs. C. S. Marshall, Mrs. M. S. Bubier, Mrs. Mary Stetson and Melodel Peabody, and a recitation by little Ola Kimball, an original story by Chas. S. Marshall and an original poem by Mrs. F. L. Wyman. The music consisted of songs by a ladies' chorus, "O what shall the harvest be," "Where have the gleaned today," and "Labor on," also a piano solo by Mrs. Stetson. Following is the poem by Mrs. Wyman, entitled, "Harvest Time."

"October came, with dancing glees untold, and her beautiful leaves of red and gold; Now she is wandering out and on the route, With leaves all strewn and on the route.

"Apples are gathered and gone their way Except a few in the cellar to stay. Harvest has nearly accomplished its task. Harvest birds are gathering the last.

"My lovely flowers are mostly away. A few garden roses on your table today. The way the daisies and pears you see In the Harvest Program we'll these be.

Mrs. Wyman brought a small bouquet of red rambler roses, the last from her garden, and three plates of beautiful assorted apples and pears and one plate of assorted grapes, all from their fruit farm which adorned the tables during the meeting and given for a treat at the close.

He had suffered from serious heart trouble with complications and was forced to abandon his practice and become a patient. He died at his home, and his death was a great loss to the community. He had been hopelessly ill more than two months.

He was born in Limerick, Sept. 9, 1853 and lived there through his boyhood, graduating from the Bowdoin Medical school in 1885. After the usual hospital experience he settled in Hiram in 1886 and remained there ever since.

He leaves a widow who was Frances Ella Chadbourne of Oxford and numerous relatives of more or less distant connection.

Nov. 1st came the annual inspection of T. A. Roberts W. C. G. and a great day it was. Mrs. May Bartlett of Bethel was the inspector. The Corps felt like thanking the Department president for assigning her to this district for all the Corps love Mrs. Bartlett.

At the last National Convention the Veterans were all made honorary members of the Relief Corps. So the little bronze button will be a passport into any National Corps. The president called the Corps to order at 2 p. m., and eight comrades responded to the invitation to come and witness the work.

After watching the work of the Corps the inspector said she had no fault to find and gave only words of commendation and said it was one of the best Corps she had ever inspected. As Mrs. Bartlett could not return to Bethel until the late train, the Corps had a social time.

The Veterans were invited to remain, and all that could do so. At five o'clock three long tables were spread with all the good things that Corps women know how to cook. That the Corps did ample justice to the supper goes without saying. They all agreed that they had had a grand good time.

Note from South Waterford.

The esteemed Advertiser Correspondent from Paris mentions the introduction of the Peter Parley Geography used way back in the early eighties. That educational work was a standard text book in Maine in the early 19th century and I was introduced to it about the year 1834.

"The earth is round, and like a ball seems swinging in the air. The sky extends around it all. The water flows around it all. The air is everywhere." That was the descriptive lesson we were easy to memorize, but the map were not so easy, and a fractious young schoolmaster did his best—or worst—to beat it into me. But never mind; it was long ago yet it seems but a few days. O my!
